Bramber.
Design by David Le Versha (1990)

David Le Versha is an English designer who has devoted this career to the design and construction of beautiful iron objects inspired by the Victorian era. Together with us, he has transformed the age-old craft techniques of the ironmonger into a high-tech, stainless steel and aluminum product.

In this design, for example, we have returned to the aesthetic of putty cut at an angle in the past by angling our modern L-profile and using hardware which now allows the safety glass to be replaced and any maintenance should it be required in the future. The mechanism that keeps the glass lid open can also be fixed in all positions.

With two handles you roll the greenhouse like a wheelbarrow to the ideal spot in your garden where your seeds or cuttings can grow optimally in the sunlight or shade. Watering the plants is done by raising the tilting windows to any desired position.

The 'Bramber' will give you a lot of pleasure and satisfaction. It is a soothing object in every sense. In use during your gardening and as an object in your garden.

All the materials we use in this design are stainless steel and aluminum. The stainless steel and aluminum are finished with two layers of powder coating. The glass is safety glass. The 'Bramber' will therefore last for generations to come. Only the paintwork will need to be repainted from time to time. We therefore give a 100-year guarantee on the construction of the Bramber.
